“ To my “Goof”:

Today we said our final goodbyes to You, a loving, caring and dedicated husband, father, grandfather, son (in-law), brother (in-law), uncle, soldier.

The service was befitting a soldier who, while not on the battlefield, but rather in private life, literally died in service to Your country. You were a forty-one year retired Army veteran and Bronze Star recipient. You were proud of Your service, but humble in Your military accomplishments and recognition. When asked about Your Bronze Star award, You would simply, and politely say, “I just did my job.” A typical response from You, a quiet and humble man. You were a true patriot Soldier to the end. Always focused on ‘the mission’ whatever that mission may have been.

While today was a heart-wrenching day for Your family and friends, life goes on. One moment, one step at a time. Thinking about the plans that we were making and what we wanted to accomplish for our future has been, at times, daunting; however, I know in my heart that You would want me, and the others you loved to continue living our lives. I also know that You will be with me, with us, in spirit and that You will be watching over everyone that You loved.

Rest easy, now, my love! Your journey here is over, but a new one has begun! Say HI to your mom and all the others that have gone before us! I will treasure all the memories that we created together and keep them, and YOU, close to my heart!

You have a ‘new’ mission now. Watch over the ones You loved and left behind! I am confident that You will succeed in that mission as well!

Two hearts, One love – ALWAYS!!!!!!

Your love wife, and “Queen,”

“ DJ helped my wife and I take down two big trees in our front yard. The complications were the house and power lines. He would spend, what seemed like hours, analyzing, cut a branch, and repeat until the trees were topped. Not so much as a twig hit the house or power lines. He wasn't able to tackle the tree he really wanted, a massive willow about 85 feet high with roughly a 7 foot diameter trunk. I told him when it comes down we're having a party and dedicating to him.

He loved his family and would help anybody who needed help whenever he could. He was proud to have served his country and always gave the credit to his unit and the ones he served with. So it's no surprise I never knew he received the bronze star until after he passed.

You will be missed. Until we meet again.
