I knew a woman a long time ago,

Who held my hand with love to show.
Who would wipe the tears off my face,
Her heart held love in a special place.

To listen to that soothing voice,
Loving me no matter what the choice.
Looking high to see that face,
Cradling me with loving grace.

A gentle touch to feel secure,
Staying with me what ever I endure.
Waking with a beautiful smile,
If only it wasn't just for a while.

He had his plan I shouldn't judge,
So hard to keep from holding a grudge.
Many times I yearn for the past,
Very grateful for the love that has last.

I know I will see again,
That smile from way back when.
I know she's there I just can't see,
My mom is with me eternally.
