“ I was fortunate to have know Glen for almost forty years. He was a dear friend and a mentor whose wisdom and kindness will never be forgotten.

I meet Glen and his brother Nelson in 1978 when I was just 17 years old. I can remember that day, knocking on his door to get permission to hunt on his land. I had no clue of the blessing I was given that day. It was the beginning of years of laughs, lessons and many wonderful memories. God blessed me that day with a lifelong friend who enriched my life. And as the years went on my children and then eventually my grandchildren were given the gift of having him as a part of there lives.

Glen was a selfless man of God who cared unconditionally. He was never mean. He was like a father to me, teaching me so many valuable lessons. I will cherish all of the memories we made over the years. All the conversations, all the dinners together, working the land together, helping each year with his flowers to recently playing tag with my youngest grandson. All these memories will never be forgotten.

Sincerely, with deep heartache,
Anthony Palermo and family
