In 1979 they retired to their beloved Cape Cod, where she spent "the best 20 years of my life." There she took an interest in photography, but her real passion was always her flower gardens. She had a love for books and was an avid reader. She was also a good cook and baker. They moved back to Rochester (North Chili) in 2000. She remained engaged in life and vibrant to the end. She will be dearly missed.
