We thank God for blessing us with an amazing and wonderful Mom, Grandmother and friend. Mom's life was a blessing, her memories a treasure, she is loved beyond words and missed beyond measure.

Pat loved to spend time working in her gardens, swimming, teaching, travelling with her children, shopping and spending as much time as she could with family.

Pat spent 50+ years with the American Red Cross as a Health and Safety Instructor and a Water Safety Instructor teaching CPR, First Aid and Swimming. Patricia loved working with the children and adults in the Special Ed Swim Program that she taught for years.

Our special thanks to the loving and caring staff at Hildebrandt Hospice Care Center who went above and beyond to provide comfort and outstanding care to our Mom as she made her journey home to be with Dad.

“ Grandma took me shopping once for my birthday once as per our tradition and I picked out a pair of bright red, open toes high heels. She called them “come and get it shoes”. I was so delighted by the term I bought her something “come and get it shoe” themed every Christmas as a gift every year since then.

When I had mono I stayed at her house and she took me out one night to show me her moon flowers that glowed white at night and only bloomed once.

I would trick or treat at her house every year for years after I was done at my track just so I could show her what every crazy costume I came up with and she would always have the big candy waiting for me.

Once I helped her make her bed into the perfect military corners she did every day and then proceeded to jump on it. Her hand was quick as lightning on my butt and then she gasped, realizing she spanked a full grown adult, who had just jumped on the bed of course, and I just started laughing and so she jumped right onto the bed next to me and started laughing too but don't worry, we remade the military corners.

She was loving, thoughtful, so much fun, a force to be reckoned with and my memories of her go on and on and I wish I had the space to share them all. She was a hero to me and I will miss her light in my life so very much. It is nice to know her and grandpa are together again though, bickering over silly nothings back and forth over Friday night spaghetti but never going to bed angry with each other. That's how you get five kids you know 😊
